A more conservative way of figurits akes the estimated population of the ty 76,817. This result is arrived at by fing back to the government ceasus of 90 for a basis. The official count at at time gave Salt Lake a population 53,531. The directory of that year named 28,202 names. There were manuely 1.9 times as many persons in the city as there were names in the directory. Using this same multipe on the 40,430 names this year, the sult is 76,817. This in itself is a count of nearly 50 per cent in five surs.

The increase in names in this year's freetory over that of 1904 is 3,552, the serease in pages 125. The count of tual names listed under each letter the ablishers, follows:
